gest men!" please spare my husband this time!" They said, Oh, you, we'll spare him!" Said I, "Oh, gentlemen! are you going to kill my husband?" One of them said, "Oh, you, you'll see him again!" They got him out of the door, and after they got him out they kicked him and off. We were all out in the yard, screaming and hallaoing. After they got down apiece, I heard one of them got down spiece. I heard one of them say "Go back and kill every one of them." We went and got our clothes and a pallet for our little baby, and went out into the field and stayed all night. The next morning we found my husband's body hanging to a tree by the roadside about half a mile away, and my brother's body lay by the side of it. They were dead.

The following is a special Washington dispatch to the Tribune:

"Prominent Republicans who have arrived here within a day or two from South Carolina, and letters received here from the capital of that State today, report that Gov. Scott, at the advice of many leading men of both parties, held a conference last Tuesday with representative Democrats, from about as counties of the State for the nurses. es, held a conference law es, held a confere made by the Democrats present, and the only complaint which they made was of the insolence of the colored militia. This was admitted, to some extent, and means will be taken to remedy the evil. General Kershaw, however, made a very bitter speech, in which he announced that in his opinion, and that of many of his friends, the only way to restore peace and prevent what the Governor termed outrages, but which he (Kershaw) regarded as but the just for the acoundrelly carpet-baggers from the North and the rascally scallawags of the South to resign the offices they had usurped, and leave those States in the hands of Southern gentlemen.

but that the power of the Executive of the United States, acting within the limits of existing laws, is sufficient for the present emergency, is not clear. Therefore, I urgently recommend such legislation as, in the judgment of Congress, shall effectually secure life, liberty and property, in all parts of the United States. It may be expedient to provide that such a law as shall be passed, in pursuance of this recommendation, shall expire at the next session of Congress. There is no other subject on which I would recommend legislation during the present session.

MR. SHERMAN'S RESOLUTION. SPRING FENCE.

Sherman was adopted by the Senate, March 23d, in the following form:

"Retolved, That as organized bands of lawless and desperate men, mainly composed of soldiers of the late rebel armies, armed, disciplined and disguised, and bound by oaths and secret obligations, are proven to exist in the State of North Carolina, and have, by force, terror and violence, defied the civil authority in that State, and by organized perjury have rendered the courts powerless to punish crimes they have committed, thus overthrowing the safety of person and property and rights, which are the primary basis of all civil governments, and which are guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States to all of its citizens, and as there is good reason to believe similar organizations Sherman was adopted by the Senate, March 23d, in the following form: reason to believe similar organizations exist and have produced similar results in many parts of the late insurrectionary States, therefore the Judiciary Committee is instructed to report a bill or bills to enable the President and the Courts of the United States to execute laws, punish and prevent such organized wielence, and secure to all citizens the rights so guaranteed to them."

PROP. FAIRCHILD ON THE TEM, PERANCE QUESTION.

Is it by any means clear that stronger Is it by any means clear that stronger laws are what we need? Is it not even certain that they would not prove a hindrance? Capital punishment for life for making, vending or using intoxicating arinks, would be a stronger law, but it could not be executed in any earthly community. The public sentiment would not support it, and it would be utterly inoperative—essentially no law. The truth is, that the temperance laws in many of our States are already in truth is, that the temperance laws in many of our States are already in advance of public sentiment. They are not executed. In the State of Ohlo we have laws which, if well sustained, vigilantly executed, would close every dram shop in the State; but in all our cities and larger towns there is essentially free trade in liquors. A law is strong when there is a strong public sentiment behind it, not when it uses strong words. The strength which our laws lack, is in an intense moral conviction and determination on the part of the people.—With this, our legislation will be effective; without it, feeble, however strong in form.

The Toledo Blade remarks: "No CONFECTIONERY. Republican convention, not even of a single county in the United States, has asked for San Domingo. The Republican press has given no voice in its favor. No class of our citizens merchants, farmers or manufacturers— has asked for it. Nineteen twentieths of the Repuclican party are opposed to this, and all other schemes of wanton waste of the public treasure for the ag-grandizement of adventurers and specu-lators."

The President sent the following message to Congress March 23:

To the Benate and House of Representatives:

A condition of affairs now exists in some States of the Union, rendering life and property insecure, and the carrying of mails and the collection of revenue dangerous. Proof that such a state of affairs exists in some localities is now before the Senate.
